for Parents, Peers, and Friends of Youth with Substance Abuse Conditions

A Letter from the Butte County Sheriff's Office

As the Sheriff of Butte County, I have witnessed the devastation to our community due to the manufacturing, sales and use of methamphetamine and the abuse of prescription drugs. It has been estimated that 85 % of crime is drug-related, and violent crime can be largely attributed to drug abuse, especially to methamphetamine.

Drug abuse has a detrimental impact on every sector of society. Drug addiction destroys personal health and safety; damages family relationships; and exposes children to dangerous hazards. Drug abuse is related to many other problems including attendant costs of medical care; environmental contamination of waterways and groundwater, landfills, and sewage; real estate values and losses due to contamination; and destructive structure and wildland fires resulting from meth lab fires.

Our Butte County Methamphetamine Strike Force is committed to eliminating the meth problem and prescription drug abuse in our county by supporting local prevention, education, enforcement, and treatment efforts.

This Directory of Services is a resource guide of community-based agencies and professionals who are available to help youth in crisis due to drug abuse.

It is funded by a grant from The California Endowment, who I would like to thank for their continued support and commitment to helping us achieve our goals as outlined in the Meth Strike Force Prevention Plan.

This Directory is the result of a collaborative effort led by Gary Bess Associates (Gary Bess and Casey Fickardt-Carrillo, LCSW) and Butte County Department of Behavioral Health along with input from the community and Meth Strike Force subcommittee members: Alice Kienzle (Butte County Public Health); John Wardell (Butte County Probation Department); Keith Krampitz and Mitch Brown (Drug Endangered Children's program); Paula Felipe (Butte County Sheriff's Office); Marian Gage (Butte County Office of Education); Melissa Romero (Probation Department); Nino Pinocchio (Juvenile Hall); Lana Wickham (Children's Services); Don Fultz (Chico Recovery Center); Scott Kennelly and Lisa Cox (Butte County Behavioral Health); Jacky Hoiland (Paradise Unified School District); Jeff Marcus (Ridgeview High School); Clarissa Pfister (Gridley Unified School District); Joe Hejl (Boys and Girls Club);

I extend my heartfelt thanks to all of you for this accomplishment and for your commitment to saving lives and protecting our community from the dangers of drug abuse.

Jerry W. Smith, Sheriff-Coroner

Background and Acknowledgements

Methamphetamine is among the greatest problems facing northern California communities. In the Pacific Region, which includes Butte County, 94.3 percent of law enforcement officials have identified methamphetamine as the greatest drug-related threat in their jurisdictions (National Drug Intelligence Center, 2007). Despite dramatic improvements, Butte County is still plagued by a major methamphetamine problem. In 2006, Butte County ranked sixth among California counties for methamphetamine activity. The nature of this threat is exemplified by drug seizure and treatment data. According to the Federal-Wide Drug Seizure System, the amount of methamphetamine seized in the Pacific Region increased from 1,889 kilograms in 2005 to 2,440 kilograms in 2006; in 2007, 1,968 kilograms had been seized in the region as of November 1.

In 2007 and 2008, with a grant from The California Endowment, a community-based initiative was undertaken by the Butte County Public Health Department in collaboration with the Butte County Methamphetamine Strike Force, multiple public and private organizations, and leaders and stakeholders. After town hall meetings, extensive surveying, focus groups, and analysis of sentinel events and data, a public health-based approach in response to the methamphetamine epidemic in Butte County was developed. This comprehensive substance abuse prevention plan pointed to several service systems change opportunities at the county level and a countywide initiative resulted to improve referral pathways for youth into substance abuse treatment, increase referrals of youth in crisis within 72 hours of identification of using substances, and increase access to community resources available for youth abusing substances. To help accomplish these goals, this Service Provider Directory was created.

Needing particular attention is the impact of substances on our youth, the focus of this directory.

Greater than one-quarter (29.3%) of Butte County youth attending a youth development retreat in February 2008 reported that they knew of friends or fellow students who could not live at their home because someone in the household was using methamphetamine (N=212). More than one-quarter (27.4%) of junior high youth also responded yes to the question, do you know of friends of fellow students who are using or have used methamphetamine? (n=106).

Also in 2008, among educators (teachers and school administrative personnel), 45.8 percent indicated that methamphetamine is a big problem in their school, and 33.3 percent reported that it is a problem. Furthermore, during the 2007 calendar year, 57 drug endangered children investigations were conducted. These investigations involved 122 children. The Children's Services Division provided services to 110 of these children, and 63 were removed from their homes.

A review of 75 medical charts of patients seen in the emergency room, clinics, or admitted to Enloe Hospital in January 2008 was completed based on diagnoses that could be related to consequences of methamphetamine use. This review revealed that the reasons for their use of the emergency room, which could be for more than one health issue, included one third (33.3%) that were drug related, 29.7% alcohol related, and 20.3% amphetamine related. Out of 2,740 individuals receiving Butte County Department of Behavior Health services for substance abuse issues in fiscal year 2006-2007, 50.8 percent reported their primary drug problem as methamphetamine. Lastly, as another indicator of this problem, of the 1,513 adults arrested by the Oroville Police Department between June 4, 2003 and March 2, 2008 on a drug or alcohol related offense(s), 495 adults (32.7%) were arrested on a methamphetamine-related offense(s).

Use of this Directory

This directory was created for you. It includes numerous agencies and individual service providers who are here to help youth with substance abuse problems and to answer your questions. They are the experts in our community who want you to know they care. This directory is organized based on the different types of treatments and services you will want to consider once you identify a youth is using substances. It describes symptoms that you may recognize in someone you know. If you have concerns, you may use this directory to call an agency or individual service provider for help. We have provided questions and agency information you will want to explore when selecting a service provider. Use our checklist to select those questions that are important to you when calling for the first time. Websites are also provided if you are interested in understanding and learning more about substance abuse and youth. Keep in mind that treatment can vary depending on whether your situation is a crisis, requiring hospitalization or residential recovery, or if support through outpatient services will be sufficient. Information is provided for all types of help.

How and Why Does Drug Use Start?

There is no single answer to that question. Surely in the case of many youths, alcohol and other drug use starts in response to peer pressure. Young people naturally want to “fit in” - to be accepted by their classmates or friends. Whatever the reasons, first use can be dangerous. Research studies show that once involvement with alcohol and other drugs begins, such involvement all too often follows a predictable sequence leading to problems due to the use of alcohol and other drugs.

Drug abuse often starts with the illicit use of legal drugs and with the use of alcohol (illegal for youth) and tobacco; users often progress from these substances to marijuana. Some users, including over half of the teenagers who use these substances, may eventually turn to other illegal drugs or combinations of drugs. For this reason, alcohol, tobacco, and marijuana are frequently called “gateway” drugs. Use of drugs such as cocaine and heroin is unusual in those who have not previously used alcohol, tobacco, and/or marijuana.

Top 8 Reasons why Teens Try Alcohol and Drugs

There is no single reason for teenage drug use and alcohol use. Dr. Neil I. Bernstein In How to Keep Your Teenager Out of Trouble and What to Do if You Can't, details some of the core issues and influences behind teenage drug and alcohol use. It's important that you, as a parent, understand these reasons and talk to your kids about the dangers of drinking and using drugs.

- 1. Other People – Teenagers see lots of people using various substances. They see their parents and other adults drinking alcohol, smoking, and, sometimes, abusing other substances. Also, the teen social scene often revolves around drinking and smoking pot. Sometimes friends urge one another to try a drink or smoke something, but it's just as common for teens to start using a substance because it's readily available and they see all their friends enjoying it. In their minds, they see drug use as a part of the normal teenage experience.

2. Popular Media – Forty-two percent of teens agreed that movies and TV shows make drugs seem like an OK thing to do, according to a 2003 study. Not surprisingly, 12- to 17-year-olds who viewed three or more “R” rated movies per month were seven times more likely to smoke cigarettes, six times more likely to use marijuana, and five times more likely to drink alcohol, compared to those who hadn’t watched “R” rated films (Amy Khan 2005).

3. Escape and Self-Medication – When teens are unhappy and can’t find a healthy outlet for their frustration or a trusted confidant, they may turn to chemicals for solace. Depending on what substance they’re using, they may feel blissfully oblivious, wonderfully happy, or energized and confident. The often rough teenage years can take an emotional toll on children, sometimes even causing depression, so when teens are given a chance to take something to make them feel better, many can’t resist.

4. Boredom – Teens who can’t tolerate being alone, have trouble keeping themselves occupied, or crave excitement are prime candidates for substance abuse. Not only do alcohol and marijuana give them something to do, but those substances help fill the internal void they feel. Further, they provide a common ground for interacting with like-minded teens, a way to instantly bond with a group of kids.

5. Rebellion – Different rebellious teens choose different substances to use based on their personalities. Alcohol is the drug of choice for the angry teenager because it frees him to behave aggressively. Methamphetamine, or meth, also encourage aggressive, violent behavior, and can be far more dangerous and potent than alcohol. Marijuana, on the other hand, often seems to reduce aggression and is more of an avoidance drug. LSD and hallucinogens are also escape drugs, often used by young people who feel misunderstood and may long to escape to a more idealistic, kind world. Smoking cigarettes can be a form of rebellion to flaunt their independence and make their parents angry. The reasons for teenage drug-use are as complex as teenagers themselves.

6. Instant Gratification – Drugs and alcohol work quickly. The initial effects feel really good. Teenagers turn to drug use because they see it as a short-term shortcut to happiness.

7. Lack of Confidence – Many shy teenagers who lack confidence report that they’ll do things under the influence of alcohol or drugs that they might not otherwise. This is part of the appeal of drugs and alcohol even for relatively self-confident teens; you have the courage to dance if you’re a bad dancer, or sing at the top of your lungs even if you have a terrible voice, or kiss the girl you’re attracted to. And alcohol and other drugs tend not only to loosen your inhibitions but to alleviate social anxiety. Not only do you have something in common with the other people around you, but there’s the mentality that if you do anything or say anything stupid, everyone will just think you had too many drinks or smoked too much weed.

8. Misinformation – Perhaps the most avoidable cause of substance abuse is inaccurate information about drugs and alcohol. Nearly every teenager has friends who claim to be experts on various recreational substances, and they’re happy to assure her that the risks are minimal. Educate your teenager about drug use, so they get the real facts about the dangers of drug use.

Four Basic Stages of Alcohol and Other Drug Use

Stage 1

Too many youngsters and adults believe that the first use of alcohol and other drugs is safe. For youths, using drugs such as tobacco and alcohol is often, unfortunately, viewed as normal. However, because young bodies are particularly susceptible to alcohol and other drugs and their effects, there is no such thing as totally “safe” use of any mind-altering drug by a youngster. In stage one, however, there may be no outward behavioral changes caused by the use of drugs.

Stage 2

The second stage involves more frequent use of alcohol or other drugs as the person actively seeks the euphoric effects of a mind-altering drug. At this point, the user usually establishes a reliable source, and may add mid-week use of alcohol or other drugs to previous habits of weekend use at parties. Among adolescents, significant clues include changes in friends, deterioration of school performance, and possibly a general lack of motivation.

Stage 3

In stage three, there is intense preoccupation with the desire to experience euphoric effects. Daily use of mind-altering drugs, depression, and thoughts of suicide are common. Family troubles increase and the adolescent may be having problems with the law.

Stage 4

In the fourth stage, increasing levels are needed just to feel OK. Physical signs such as coughing, frequent sore throats, weight loss, and fatigue - which may have begun to appear earlier - are now common. Blackouts and overdosing also are more common, family life is a disaster, and crime may be becoming a way of life to obtain money to buy drugs.

How do I Know if Someone I Care About is Using Drugs?

Is Your Teen or Friend Using: Signs and Symptoms of Substance Abuse

There's no easy way to figure out if your teen is using drugs or alcohol. As you'll see, many of the signs and symptoms of teen substance abuse listed below are also, at times, typical adolescent behavior. Many are also symptoms of mental health issues, including depression or anxiety disorders.

If you've noticed any of the changes related to substance abuse listed below, don't be afraid to come right out and ask your teen direct questions like "Have you been offered drugs?" If yes, "What did you do?" or "Have you been drinking or using drugs?" While no parent wants to hear a "yes" response to these questions, be prepared for it. Decide, in advance, how you'll respond to a "yes". Make sure you reassure your child that you're looking out for him or her, and that you only want the best for his or her future.

Of course, not all teens are going to fess up to drug or alcohol use, and a "no" could also mean your child is in need of help for mental health issues. That's why experts strongly recommend that you consider getting a professional assessment of your child with a pediatrician or child psychologist to find out what's going on. In the case of teen substance abuse, don't be afraid to err on the side of caution. Teaming up with professionals to help your teen is the best way to make sure he or she has a healthy future.

Personal Appearance

- Messy, shows lack of caring for appearance
- Poor hygiene
- Red, flushed cheeks or face
- Track marks on arms or legs (or long sleeves in warm weather to hide marks)
- Burns or soot on fingers or lips (from "joints" or "roaches" burning down)

Personal Habits or Actions

- Clenching teeth
- Smell of smoke or other unusual smells on breath or on clothes
- Chewing gum or mints to cover up breath
- Heavy use of over-the-counter preparations to reduce eye reddening, nasal irritation, or bad breath
- Frequently breaks curfew
- Cash flow problems
- Reckless driving, car accidents, or unexplained dents in the car
- Avoiding eye contact
- Locked doors
- Going out every night
- Secretive phone calls
- "Munchies" or sudden appetite

Behavioral Issues Associated with Teen Substance Abuse

- Abrupt changes in mood or attitude
- Associating with a new group of friends, especially with those who use drugs.
- Heightened secrecy about actions and possessions.
- Change in relationships with family members or friends
- Loss of inhibitions
- Mood changes or emotional instability
- Loud, obnoxious behavior
- Laughing at nothing
- Unusually clumsy, stumbling, lack of coordination, poor balance
- Sullen, withdrawn, depressed
- Unusually tired
- Silent, uncommunicative
- Hostility, anger, uncooperative behavior
- Deceitful or secretive
- Makes endless excuses
- Decreased Motivation
- Lethargic movement
- Unable to speak intelligibly, slurred speech, or rapid-fire speech
- Inability to focus
- Hyperactivity
- Unusually elated
- Periods of sleeplessness or high energy, followed by long periods of “catch up” sleep
- Disappearances for long periods of time

School- or Work-Related Issues

- Truancy or loss of interest in schoolwork
- Sudden and continuing decline in attendance or performance at work or in school.
- Sudden and continuing resistance to discipline at home or in school.
- Loss of interest in extracurricular activities, hobbies, or sports
- Failure to fulfill responsibilities at school or work
- Complaints from teachers or co-workers
- Reports of intoxication at school or work

Health Issues Related to Teen Substance Abuse

- Nosebleeds
- Runny nose, not caused by allergies or a cold
- Frequent sickness
- Sores, spots around mouth
- Queasy, nauseous
- Seizures
- Vomiting
- Wetting lips or excessive thirst (known as “cotton mouth”)

- Sudden or dramatic weight loss or gain
- Skin abrasions/bruises
- Accidents or injuries
- Depression
- Headaches
- Sweatiness

Home- or Car-Related

- Disappearance of prescription or over-the-counter pills
- Missing alcohol or cigarettes
- Disappearance of money or valuables
- Increased amount and frequency of borrowing money from family and friends.
- Stealing from the home, at school, or in the workplace.
- Smell in the car of bottles, pipes, or bongs on floor or in glove box
- Appearance of unusual containers or wrappers, or seeds left on surfaces used to clean marijuana, like Frisbees,
- Appearance of unusual drug apparatuses, including pipes, rolling papers, small medicine bottles, eye drops, butane lighters, or makeshift smoking devices, like bongs made out of toilet paper rolls and aluminum foil
- Hidden stashes of alcohol

Behaviors that Require Immediate Action

In any situation where the person is making statements about harming himself or herself (suicide or other self harm) or harming someone else, do not wait to call for help during regular business hours. There are services available 24/7 and you should call the Butte County Department of Behavioral Health Crisis line at (800)371-4373 or (530)891-2794 and/or call 9-1-1

If you are concerned a youth is using drugs, you should take the youth to see his/her primary care physician for a medical evaluation and for a medical assessment. Substances can have many effects that can be life threatening and be prepared to call 9-1-1 in an emergency.

If the youth is reporting they have been a victim of abuse, contact Butte County Children's Services at (800)400-0902.

If the youth has run away from home and/or is homeless, contact local law enforcement and the H.E.R.E (Homeless Emergency Runaway Effort) program at (800)371-4373.

Making a Call for Help:

Once you have determined someone you care about is using drugs, the next step is to call an agency or individual provider for help. When choosing an agency there are many factors you may want to consider:

- Age and backgrounds of clients served
- Cultural awareness
- Sliding scale and insurance taken
- Specialty services
- Hours of Operation
- Criteria for Admission
- Flexibility with school schedule
- Transportation assistance

Picking up the telephone and making the call may be difficult at first. You may struggle with organizing what you want to say. This is normal and once you make the call, the professional will guide you with where to go and ask you questions. To get you started, here is a general script of what to say when asking for help and how to introduce yourself.

"Hi, my name is _____. I am calling to get information about your programs for substance abuse for my ___ year old son/daughter. Can I please speak to someone who can help me with this?"

To help you organize your thoughts, the following pages include a list of questions you may want to consider in thinking about how you want to start your conversation and what information you want to know about the agency or individual service provider. Put a check mark by questions that are important to you to help you organize your phone call.

Questions to Consider When Choosing Treatment

Questions About How Family Members Will be Involved in Treatment

- _____ Ask if family is involved in the treatment process and in what ways.
- _____ Ask how the family will be prepared when the affected member returns home.

- _____ Is parental participation required and what form does this take?
- _____ Are there support and educational groups for families?

Questions About Staff Qualifications and Program Characteristics

- _____ Question providers about the therapies their counselors and therapists have had training.
- _____ What does the admission process entail?
- _____ What are the basic qualifications for being on staff with regard to education, work experience, personal recovery from substance abuse?
- _____ Is the staff sensitive to cultural issues and is it diverse with regards to age, sex, ethnicity, and sexual orientation?
- _____ Location of the facility (many treatment facilities are not local so consider whether the facility is accessible by bus, other family members or friends, and prepare for the cost of long trips to visit)?
- _____ Is the facility accredited (state licensed by the Department of Health or other Healthcare organization accreditations)?
- _____ Are adults also treated with the youth or are there separate programs for youth?
- _____ Are adults housed in the same location, what steps are made to ensure safety?
- _____ Are there alternative recovery models available or are they based on the self-help model with 12-step being emphasized?
- _____ What if the youth rejects the spiritual basis of some programs, are there alternatives?
- _____ What is the average length of treatment?
- _____ How many youth are treated at the same time? (size of therapy groups, etc)?
- _____ Ask whether individual therapy is available? Is group therapy available?
- _____ How many sessions are offered?
- _____ Ask if the program treatment involves monitoring of substance use throughout treatment.
- _____ Ask how a provider can tell if a treatment is working and what they do if it is not?
- _____ Ask how many types of therapy, counseling, medications and other services are available for changing a treatment plan?
- _____ Ask about continuing care options available to patients. Ask how long the continuing care continues and what form it is (home visits, telephone)?
- _____ What will be offered or suggested for aftercare?
- _____ Ask about formal efforts to link patients with AA or other mutual help groups?
- _____ Ask about linking the patient with their primary care physician to assure continuity of care?

Questions About Costs and Insurance

Payment for addiction treatment can be a complicated matter and is an honest concern as well. Treatment programs and practitioners get paid from three sources:

- Private health insurance
- Medi-Cal and Medicare (public insurances)
- Public funds that are a combination of federal and state government dollars (for patients that have neither public nor private insurance)
- Sliding Fee Schedule
- Ask about how the cost of treatment can or will be covered.
- Ask if there are coverage limits or limitations as it applies to treatment.
- Are there scholarships to offset the costs of the treatment

If you have health insurance, you should insist that the health plan pay for a full clinical assessment that identifies all of the physical and psychological problems that need to be addressed by treatment, as well as other services that are needed. Insist on knowing your privacy rights, how your health insurance decides what it will cover and who will work with you to coordinate care. Here are some key questions to navigating the complex maze of funding used to pay for private and public insurance coverage:

- Am I insured? What are my health insurance benefits? What are the deductibles, co-pays, annual and lifetime limits of my insurance benefits?
- What are the criteria the health insurance company will use to decide if it will allow admission to treatment and will pay for the treatment?
- If Medi-Cal is paying for my child's treatment services, what do I need to know about the treatment provider I want to use?
- Will someone coordinate the care that is being reimbursed? Who? Where are they located and how do I reach them?
- If I use my health insurance, who else will know about the problem? Will the record follow them? For how long?

Remember some of your best resources are people in your lives, such as teachers, doctors, and other parents. Take time to talk to other parents or youth who have used these services. It is ok to ask questions and to let staff members know you are unclear or uncertain about the program. Plan a visit to the location and talk with staff. You will be able to meet the staff face to face and see the location for yourself

What to Expect at Your First Appointment

Assessment Process

The first thing that can be expected is for a professional at the facility to conduct an addiction assessment. This is done for a variety of reasons, mostly to determine what kind of treatment is in order. The assessment will probably be a list of questions to give the health professionals a history of their patient, such as current situation, length of time and type of drug addiction, criminal history, health history, and so on. They will also ask the new patient about personal goals and ambitions, family structure, and school or work experience. The medical staff will conduct a physical exam, and will note any other disorders the patient is dealing with, such as depression or anxiety. The patient is asked to be open and honest about all these questions, and the answers are to be kept confidential.

The goal of obtaining these answers is to have a measure of how severe the patient's addiction is, to look at other factors influencing the patient, and also to know how serious the patient is about getting help. The interview process can give the professional a good understanding about the patient and help them find the best treatment for the addiction. It will also help the staff evaluate the progress the patient is making as they undergo treatment.

Drug Treatment Plan

After the assessment has been completed, the staff will work with the patient to develop a treatment plan. This plan will give the patient an idea of the type of program that is recommended, as well as the length of time they can expect to be in treatment. It may be necessary for the patient to work with different professionals, such as counselors and physicians, and to take part in programs such as group therapy, family counseling, and individual counseling. The treatment plan will make sure that all the pieces are lined up and the patient receives all the care they need.

During this whole process, the patient should be sure they are asking questions they might have, and should be put at ease by the staff about any concerns they have.

RECOVERY:

The process of pursuing a fulfilling and contributing life, regardless of the difficulties one has faced. It involves not only the restoration but continued enhancement of a positive identity and personally meaningful connections and roles in one's community. Recovery is facilitated by relationships and environments that provide hope, empowerment, choices, and opportunities that promote people reaching their full potential as individuals and community members (Evans, 2006)

Resource Directory Organization

This resource directory is organized alphabetically. For each agency or individual service provider, you will find helpful information that they have included pertaining to their services. While some agencies offer a range of care from crisis intervention to family support, others focus on one or two services. Use the information provided to decide what best meets your needs. All of the agencies and individual service providers in this directory are committed to helping youth and if you are uncertain if an agency or individual service provider has what you are looking for, any of these agencies or individual service providers will be willing to answer your questions and guide you with referrals to services that will best meet your needs. The first step is making the telephone call and speaking to someone who knows how to help and guide you. Any of these resources will help you with this. Please note, this directory does not include all the resources available for youth experiencing substance abuse issues in Butte County. This directory includes agencies and individual service providers who responded to the Methamphetamine Strike Force surveys we sent out requesting they be returned to us for inclusion in this directory. Please explore other resources available on your own by talking with people you know, other professionals, exploring the Butte County yellow pages, and other community resource directories and publications.
